The Southern Convention.

From the Tribune. The address and resolutions adopted by the Southern Convention on Thursday, declare that Mr. Johnson's policy is responsible for our present troubles, and testify that the encouragement given the Rebels has placed the lives and fortunes of Southern Union men in the hands of men who have fearfully abused their power.

The debate was very earnest between Governor Hamilton and the opponents of a national plank, but fortunately the matter was finally adjusted by the moderation and good sense of the Convention. The delegates from the unrepresented States then offered another address, in which they urged that the Convention should be understood to be in favor of the Union men of the extreme South—Texas, Louisiana, Georgia, and Alabama.

Our Finances. The liquidated national debt, less the amount of cash in the treasury, one year ago, was over $2,757,000,000; it is now but $2,585,683,168. On the 1st of January last, it was $2,749,491,745; so that its reduction during the last eight months has considerably exceeded $150,000,000.

Such being the case, it is deplorable that because of our deranged, inflated currency, our debt should be rapidly going abroad for sale at an average "snave" of twenty-five per cent. While a French or British five per cent. bond, having some years to run, would sell to-day for par or over, our six per cent. principal and interest payable in gold, are rapidly passing out of American hands for European hands at an average price of about seventy-five cents on the dollar.

Can it be that Mr. McCulloch is indifferent to this steady currency, that is, to his safety as a man? He might certainly spare forty or fifty millions of his specie wherewith to buy it up, as cheaply as possible, so much of the public debt as it would pay for. And this, we are confident, would go a long way towards restoring our credit, and our children would not be obliged to give nearly or quite par for it.

The President's Mistake. President Johnson, in his speech at Cleveland, remarked that he "did not care about his dignity." In our judgment this is greatly to be regretted. The American people care very much about it, and can never see it forgotten or laid aside without profound sorrow and solicitude.

Official Decorum. We should much prefer to speak in terms of entire respect of the President of the United States, and to avoid making any issue personal to him, while opposing the policy which he advocates. It has not generally been difficult for men of fair and candid minds to do this. There was nothing in the demeanor of the earlier Presidents which afforded any ground for personal criticism, although such attacks were freely made upon them by reckless and over-entitled men.

So indeed, as a rule, were the two others, although their tortuous policy compelled them occasionally to humiliate themselves before the world, and Mr. Buchanan began the bad practice of stump-speaking. General Taylor was a man of unaffected simplicity, which gave to his manner a kindly dignity more attractive even than the formal polish of cultivated men.

It is a great mistake on the part of the President to assume or suppose that the great body of the people in the North who dissent from his views are enemies of the Union, or are seeking consciously to destroy it. We believe the policy they favor to be fraught with infinite mischief to the country, and with great peril to its peace and perpetuity.

and shared by the President in common with the great mass of the loyal and patriotic people of the land. The time has come when the public good demands that they should be moderated and delayed. The President, in this great work, is in advance of the nation. Knowing the Southern States and people from personal association with them, better than do the people of the North, he has had stronger reliance upon the sincerity and good faith with which they have accepted the results of the war, and has been more ready to trust in their renewed devotion to the Government and the flag of our common country.

The Nigger Worshipers' Convention in Philadelphia.

From the Herald. In our graphic reports of the present Philadelphia Convention, as in a mirror, radicalism may see its own hideous and grotesque image clearly reflected. The Convention is composed of the worst fanatics of the North and the South, and the only contest between them is as to which shall go to the greater extreme.
